A colony of seven female and two male Beagle dogs has been established at the new Los Angeles Children's Zoo and will provide puppies for children to enjoy for years to come, Dr. Wesley A. Young, zoo director, said today.

The animals are a present of the Southern California Veterinary Medical Association.

"It is the objective of this exhibit to be both educational and entertaining to zoo visitors," Dr. Richard B. Fink, president of the SCVMA, said in making the presentation. "We hope the exhibit will prove to be a popular one in the Children's Zoo."

TURN ON THE LIGHTS

If you are shooting outdoors at night, you will find dark buildings and wish that some of the windows were lighted. Chances are you can't wander around in them turning on lights, but you can after you've made the slide. Simply make tiny holes in the windows with a pin. Then when you project the slide, the windows will appear lighted.
